Automatically record keyboard commands and paste them directly into programs without having to use an external editor or clipboard manager. The macro recorder can record up to a hundred commands and automatically remember its settings after the first use. It is possible to set specific sequences that you can replay with a double click, even if the app is not in the foreground. With the KeyMacro tab, you can change the keyboard shortcuts from another program, display a list of all the commands you have recorded and edit specific commands through the Edit option. As for the recording itself, you can choose a specific process, set the recording options, and set the microphone volume. For the latter, you can choose between Auto, Mute, and No Mute. The settings can be saved to a REG file, which can be loaded and used with any other application. The commands you recorded can be played back by a double click, but you can also choose to launch them directly from the keyboard. The program's interface is clean and its default settings are quite useful. Things To Know: KeyMacro can automatically record keyboard shortcuts, which can then be pasted directly into other programs without having to use an external editor. The tabbed interface will enable you to set different commands, both through the keyboard and through another program. KeyMacro can save and load macro files from other programs, as well as edit the text within them. Because of its unobtrusive interface, it's easy to use KeyMacro without having to spend too much time getting used to its interface. KeyMacro works for most versions of Windows, including XP, Vista, and 7. It's available as a free download from the developer's website. xRegEdit is a complete registry editor that can be used to edit multiple components of Windows. This is a fully featured tool that does not have a minimalist appearance. Its interface contains a window for registry information, a window for viewing the content of the registry, two panes for searching and selecting items and a toolbar. You can view all the key and value data, delete entries or leave them as is. The tool also has an option to search for a specific value, highlight it and edit it. There are several buttons to change entries and display the advanced tab. It is possible to view not only the contents of the current value but also its previous and next ones, which can be helpful when performing a backup and restoration of your registry 77a5ca646e

RegFromApp is a software utility which enables you to view and change the registry data for any application on your computer. This tool does not require installation, as it is portable. Consequently, the Windows registry will not be affected in any way, and no leftover files will remain on the HDD after its removal. You should also know that copying the program files to a portable storage unit (e.g. USB drive) enables you to use RegFromApp on any computer you can get your hands on, without having to waste time with installing. The interface is minimal and encloses a menu bar, several shortcut buttons and a pane to display registry information. This means it can be easily used by anybody, regardless of their previous experience, as long as they understand the lingo present. You can choose between starting with an already running process or with a new one. The first will display a list of items, along with their IDs, names and paths, while the latter requires you to choose an EXE file from the hard drive and parameters. It is possible to show last modified or original values, cut, copy, paste and delete elements, undo actions, as well as clear all information. Aside from that, you can stop registering information from an app and save all gathered information to the hard drive in a REG file, for further analysis. It is important to keep in mind that if you download the 64-bit version of the program, you can only analyze 64-bit processes. In conclusion, RegFromApp is a useful piece of software when it comes to viewing and editing registry data pertaining to any app on your PC. It has a good response time, user-friendly environment and it does not tamper with your system's performance. I have been creating some CPU and Memory benchmarks (CPU, Memory, Multithreading, Memory Bandwidth,...). It is mostly done for my self, but also thought it would be interesting to share. I was not able to find a good benchmarking app for the Pascal (Assembler) compiler, so I had to create a small benchmarking app that will be used for testing. I have created a benchmarking software for the following applications: - Microsoft Visual C++ Compiler 9 - Turbo Pascal Compiler (16/32 bit) - Borland Pascal Compiler - C++ Builder Compiler - Turbo C++ Compiler (C++ and MFC) - Allegro 5.0/6.0 Compiler - MediaPlayer 10.2 Compiler I was able to get this app to compile over 400 different projects (some of these are a bit special). The test projects include embedded development projects as well as desktop applications. The benchmark is working on Visual Studio 2008, Delphi 2007 and RAD Studio XE2. The MainBench is an automatic benchmark that will test your applications, plus it will also provide a visual analysis of the results. Once you have entered your application into the MainBench, it will run and you will be able to watch the benchmark progress. Once the test is complete the MainBench will generate a benchmark report of your application. The report will contain an automatic diagnosis of the application and a suggested correction if any. It is highly recommended to run the MainBench after you have updated the application or after it has been deployed. Please note that the benchmark is to be run in a clean environment. The application will detect the external components that are installed and will adjust accordingly. To run the application simply download the zip file below. (Don't forget
