Upon upgrading iOS to iOS6 (A2E), I no longer got Push Notifications, nor did I continue to get new notifications when I added new friends or obtained a Steam Achievement. My friend, who has not upgraded to iOS6, and is still able to get desktop notifications from Steam, also said that his notification for Steam achievements has disappeared. The two most commonly cited limitations of chemoprevention by use of difluoromethylornithine (DFMO) and phenytoin are drug toxicity and poor response rates. We have shown that the former can be obviated by use of DFMO in combination with the beta-glucuronidase-inhibitor methylglyoxal bis-guanylhydrazone (MGBG). Tumor recurrences are now occurring only in the initially-unsensitized patients and drugs that can bind selectively to this population should provide a more effective means to treat patients. To determine whether MGBG in combination with DFMO can obviate the toxicity to which other agents such as hydroxyurea have been linked, we administered DFMO (2.5g/m²/day orally) and/or MGBG (40 mg twice weekly) alone or in combination to rats. With this d

(a) Define the notion of splitting of an ideal I of R in K . (b) Show that if I is not a nilpotent ideal of R , then I^2 and I^3 are ideals of R and I^2 is the splitting ideal in K of I in K . A: For (a): Given an element $x \in I$ we get from $x^2 \in I^2$ the ideal $J = \{r \in R : x^2 r \in I\}$. Clearly J is an ideal of R , so if we can show that J is not all of R then we are done. But J contains the image of the natural map $R \rightarrow R/I^2$: indeed, if $x \in J$, the element $1 + I^2 \in R/I^2$ maps to 0 under the natural map. So J is strictly contained in R , hence is a proper ideal. For (b): We know that I^2 is an ideal of R ; we must show that I^2 is the splitting ideal in K of I in K . Let $x \in I$ and write $K = k \oplus I$ and $R = R' \oplus I$ where R' is a subring of K . We have the natural map $\phi: R \rightarrow k$ and $\psi: I \rightarrow k$, corresponding to the projection on the last direct summand, and the natural map $\pi: k \rightarrow k/I$. We want to show that $\pi(x^2) \in k/I$.

During the third quarter of January, steady but mostly unspectacular apartment sales increases were reported in all major markets, including Philadelphia, Milwaukee, and Cleveland, but a new apartment market - Riverside, California - saw the completion of 381 apartments in a three-month period. Riverside, parts of which are included in the San Diego metro area, is set for a $9.5 Billion General Plan Update, which would allow for the construction of nearly 5,000 new residences, just for new projects. This would mean a total of nearly 11,000 new rentals, about 20% of the total housing inventory in the city. Riverside has a heavy concentration of industrial land, particularly in the University Heights area - the new Spring Valley Project
